

A scatter plot on a white background with a black border. It contains a large, dense cluster of blue circular points. The points are arranged in a roughly horizontal, elongated shape with some internal structure, including a curved tail on the left. A single red circular point is located near the center of the main cluster, representing the centroid. There are several small, isolated groups of blue points scattered around the main cluster.

