

A scatter plot on a white background with a black border. It contains a large, dense cluster of blue circular data points. The cluster is roughly horizontal, spanning from the left side to the right side of the plot, with a slight upward curve. A single red circular data point is located to the right of the main cluster, near the center vertically. There are also several small, isolated blue clusters scattered around the main group.